

The Active Voice

Young Environmentalist Internship

Are You:

- A Connecticut high school junior or senior; or a college freshman or sophomore?
- Fed up with a power structure that ignores your concerns about climate change?
- Eager to learn about the environment and help protect it?
- Someone who likes to write, research, debate and challenge the status quo?
- Interested in the inner workings of state government and how you can help form public policy?
- Dedicated, ready to roll up your sleeves and eager to meet like-minded young people from around the state?

If you answered “Yes!” this internship is for you.

What is The Active Voice?

The Active Voice is a high-level internship for young people who care deeply about the future of the planet.

Through hands-on work with Connecticut’s leading environmental advocacy groups, access to the halls of power at the State Capitol, and publishing with a leading political journal, interns will help “move the needle” on climate change.

Want Credit?

In addition to being exciting and adding experience to your resume, you can apply, through your school, to use this internship for your Capstone Project, Community Service Hours, college class credit, or an independent study.

And it will give you great insight into both journalism and government as career options.

Check us out

Join our amazing team of young environmentalists and learn how to use your voice to turn climate despair into action! Check out our website:

